MAN KILLED IN SEWER CAVE-I

SPORTSMEN OF COUNTY ENJOY FINE BANQUET

More Than 100 At Elks Club Hear Sen. Atwood Explain Conservation Bill.

Over 100 persons attended the annual meeting of the Pickaway Farmers and Sportsmen's Protective association held at the Elks Club Thursday evening. At seven o'clock the members sat down to a sumptuous dinner of Red Snapper fish, received direct from Florida waters, and prepared to "hit the spot," with trimmings of baked potatoes, head lettuce with dressing, celery, hot rolls, butter and coffee.

After the banquet William Reid, president, called upon E. H. Rausenberger who reported on the meeting conservation held in Columbus. Mr. Rausenberger reported that the difficulties between the sportsmen and the conservation council have been ironed out and better cooperation is expected in the future. Mr. Rausenberger told of the activities of the local organization since its inception and the splendid work it has accomplished.

MEN INTRODUCED

Before the main speaker of the evening was introduced F. L. Brothers, of the fish and game commission, W. J. Marion, state representative of this district and A. P. Shannon, president of the Central Ohio Anglers League were called on for remarks.

Senator J. F. Atwood, sportsman of note and well known in this district for his work along conservation lines, was then introduced by William Reid, president of the local organization.

"First of all," he stated, "I want to pay tribute to two local men who have played a big part in putting over the conservation bill, and these are W. J. Marion, and E. H. Rausenberger. Mr. Marion was always on the job, in the House, and Rausenberger was daily in attendance when this bill was before the legislature."

EXPLAINS BILL

Mr. Atwood then explained the conservation bill and what it means to the people. "If we have streams with fish, forests with game, we will have more satisfied sportsmen and farmers. Game life as a whole benefits the farmer, for many of them fight the insects which are the farmers pests. The major things before the people of Ohio today are the preservation of game and the cleaning of the streams for fish. These two things will be done, and with the help of the good people of Ohio, can be accomplished in the shortest time possible. Enlightened conscience of the general public is the best thing for game preservation and this will help us attain our goal better than anything else. The future for game life looks bright," he stated, "and with the cooperation of the people and such organizations like this, we can't help but do the things we want done." Mr. Atwood answered questions pertaining to the conservation law and game life before the meeting closed.

E. H. Rausenberger, local sport enthusiast and past president of the local organization, was given a vote of thanks for his efforts in making this annual meeting the success that it was.

R. M'DONALD WINS FIGHT

Vote of Censure of Unemployment Policies Defeated In Parliament.

LONDON, March 14.—Prime Minister MacDonald was able today to lay aside the heavy political armor he has worn for a fortnight as the result of a victory last night in the House of Commons, in which a vote of censure of his governments' unemployment measures have kept the prime minister in the thick of the fight. The vote of censure introduced by Stanley Baldwin, was doomed to defeat before roll-call inasmuch as it lacked the necessary liberal support.

ENGLISH, U. S. NAVAL PARITY IS DISCARDED

Effort To Save Five-Power Conference From Failure Is Taken Friday.

By HARRY R. FLORY

LONDON, March 14.—Thrown overboard in a frantic attempt to save the five-power naval disarmament conference from failure, the 1,200,000-ton parity agreement between the United States and Great Britain went into the discard today.

While the principle of parity between the two English-speaking naval powers will be maintained, the level will be considerably higher than that agreed upon tentatively some weeks ago.

According to present indications, the figure will be nearer 1,300,000 tons, representing an increase over the tentative program of approximately 100,000 tons of warships.

The American delegation to the parley, although reluctant, is prepared to accept this augmented figure and let the earlier program of 1,200,000 tons go by the board. This decision has been necessitated by the final realization by both British and American delegates that it is impossible to persuade France to reduce her tonnage demands appreciably.

ABOUT FACE

In this connection, the British admiralty has executed a complete about face. Previously, this board estimated Britain would require a 400,000 ton increase in the Anglo-American parity figures if the French retained their total demands. Now it appears that 100,000 tons will prove sufficient.

After a close inspection of the French figures, an admiralty expert admitted today that the effective French fleet of 1936 and thereafter would total only 660,000 tons. Therefore, the British feel

JUDGE KING AT ROTARY

Columbus Man Gives Forceful Talk On "Principles of Life" Thursday.

Rotarians, at their weekly meeting Thursday noon, had the pleasure of listening to Judge J. R. King of Columbus.

Judge King, a very forceful and interesting speaker spoke on the "Principles of Life" and how the motto of Rotary "Service Above Self" has been exemplified from the ages down to the present time. Judge King's talk plainly showed him a master of language and of great ability to interest his listeners.

For the second successive week the members were all present or accounted for making another 100 per cent meeting. The local club has stood high in club attendance in this district and with two meeting of this kind should maintain its lead.

General Sherman, a brilliant and successful soldier, frankly admitted that General Grant was a greater commander than himself. Sherman used to say: "I know more tactics and strategy than Grant, have just as good a mind and a better military education but what the other fellow is doing when General Grant doesn't see him, does not worry him a bit, while it worries me like thunder." General Grant was a remarkable soldier, a most successful man in his chosen line of endeavor, he found that he had enough to do to attend to his own campaign. He knew his opponents were all brilliant men. He played his own game, laid his own battle upon himself for the thinking part of the business, and did so well that he succeeded.

Candidates should follow Grant's plan. They will do well to let the other candidates entirely alone. Pay no attention to what you hear they are doing or have done. Attend strictly to the business of saving the extra votes, and let the other fellow alone. The other candidates will try to beat you if possible. It is up to the real hustler to get out and make the next few days count big. If you have ever

CONVICT, MAN DIE IN BATTLE

Revision of Trusty System In New Jersey Pen Expected To Be Changed.

TRENTON, N. J., March 14.—Revision of regulation's governing "trusties" in New Jersey state prison was forecast today as the result of the daring attempt of Charles Evans to escape, ending in the death of Evans and a guard and the wounding of two other guards.

Evans, a young "lifer" doing clerical work and said to have the run of a corridor in the evening wrested a pistol from one keeper and then shot and killed Frank Butcher, another guard.

Chased into a cell after he snatched a second weapon from Butcher. Evans wounded two guards who pursued him and finally trapped in a cell and blinded by a tear gas bomb, ended his own life

During the shootings 1500 convicts screamed at the top of their voices and beat on cell bars.

Discovery Of Large Planet Is Result Of Long Search

By LYLE ABBOTT

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., March 14—The discovery of a new planet, whose rate of motion and path indicate that it is a member beyond neptune of the sun's family of planets, according to a statement today by Dr V. M. Slipher, director of the Lowell observatory, was in no sense an accident but resulted from a well-organized search begun a quarter of a century ago as directed by Dr. Percival Lowell's mathematical findings, which had convinced him a trans-neptune planet existed.

WORK DECADE

Dr. Lowell's work extended over a decade and led to much laborious searching by the observatory staff of the sky during his lifetime and since.

Early last year the new Lawrence Lowell telescope, especially designed for carrying on the search for Lowell's predicted planet, was brought into operation

Recently on plates he made with this instrument C. W. Tombaugh, assistant on the staff at Lowell observatory, found a very promising object

It has since been followed critically, especially by astronomer lampland, with a large reflector and has been visually observed with the large refractor by the various members of the observatory staff.

The motion of the planet has been carefully analyzed and appears explainable only as due to a body beyond neptune's orbit.

Its great distance, faintness and apparently small size, showing no planetary disk leaves knowledge of it based entirely upon its rate of motion and path according to Dr Slipher.

For seven weeks this new planet has kept faithfully to the expected course of a trans-neptune body, agreeing in distance and position with Lowell's 1914 predictions

LARGER THAN EARTH

The object, even in large telescopes, looks sensibly like other faint stars, and it is doubtless a much smaller body than neptune, whose diameter is 33,000 miles or four times the diameter of the earth, according to the Lowell observatory authorities.

It will take at least months to gain much acquaintance with this new object of the skies, according to Dr. Slipher, and so its position in distance from the sun may for some time remain its most distinguishing characteristic.

Yerkes astronomers announced that discovery of the ninth world by Lowell observatory has ended more than a year of vain search by University of Chicago scientists to locate the same planet.

Prof. Barrett explained that the Yerkes search was based on erroneous calculations

The late Dr. Percival Lowell's predictions in 1911 as to the existence of the new world were based on a highly complicated mathematical formula in which he plotted the course of the then hypothetical new planet.

NGLISH, U. S. AVAL PARITY IS DISCARDED

y nced an increase of 35,000 e in cruisers and 50,000 tons destroyers over the total agreed n by President Hoover and me Minister MacDonald.

This means, of course, that the ited States can automatically im the right to a similar in- ase in figures in order to pre- ve parity, but it was pointed in American circles that it lly means very little actual in- ase, since old destroyers can retained in order to maintain necessary destroyer strength 200,000 tons

Building of 35,000 additional s of cruisers is considered to worth the price of a five-pow- agreement.

The additional United States iser tonnage probably will be otted to the light cruiser cate- ry, and thus will not appreciа- alter the terms of the Japa- se-American negotiations So as the latter are concerned, Americans continue to insist ment is near, but the Ja- nese resolutely refuse to clinch y bargain until they see the tcome of the Franco-British ne- tiations.

The only thing on the confer- ce schedule today other than vate meetings between the va- us delegates, is a meeting this ternoon of the special sub-com- ittee just appointed to work out agreement for methods of rapping obsolete vessels other an battleships and aircraft car- ers.

CAMPAIGN

seen a rowing race you will have noticed that the men are not permitted to look at the men in the other boat. Each must pull his own individual oar with all his might with no thought but to put all the business of winning the race and sending the powerful blade through the resisting waters. At the end of the race he knows whether he has won the race or not, and not before.

Such should be the idea of The Herald candidates during the remainder of the campaign They should get down to hard work now, and stick to it to the last day.

Nothing under the starry heaven will win the coveted prize but votes and now that the coupons are cut down to so small amount the only way to win is by getting subscriptions and thereby saving the extra vote offers advertised each week. Don't spend your time trying to find out what the other candidates are doing or have done but remember you are a pledged candidate and you are in the campaign to win, and that unless you do everything possible, you are apt to be beaten at the finish.

The live candidates will grasp the new vote offer with a vengeance It will be allowed for both new and old subscriptions, and it goes without saying that it is the very best offer you will ever have to win.

At no future time will an offer allowing as many extra votes be given and the wise candidate will make his or her hours count during the next few days Here is the proposition, if you expect to win get busy for this is your golden opportunity

ANSWERS FOR EVERYTHING

Henry Ford sits in his improvised office at Fort Myers, Fla., and answers the many questions of reporters with apparently unfailing good nature and unfailing faith in his own pronouncements. Everything he says is news, because this manufacturer of automobiles is also a fascinating phenomenon of American life.

His peace ship seemed to be a mistake, although there are still individuals who admire him for possessing the idealism, the courage and the imagination to undertake such a venture. He said, and seemed to believe, that history was bunk, and then proceeded to establish at Sudbury, Mass., and Dearborn, Mich., historic museums of great interest and importance. He fought the Jews in print and then apologized to them. He has, and unhesitatingly voices ideas and opinions on every subject from the perfect diet to the perfect government. Education, welfare, industry, economics, government, prohibition, marriage, are only a few of the subjects on which his opinions have been asked and quoted recently.

"I don't quite 'get' him" says a newspaper reader. "He ought to be just a hard-headed American business man, but somehow he sets me to thinking also of Don Quixote and the Delphic Oracle and Peter Pan, and he seems to be an Alice-in-wonderland jumble of all of them."

PAUPERIZING A RICH NATION

Joblessness is getting to be a regular job in England. Or as a British laborite expresses it, "unemployment has become a trade. The "dole" makes it possible.

In some of the British industrial cities, Sheffield, for instance, nearly one-fifth of the nominally working population are registered as unemployed.

The skilled ones are those permanently out of work. They know their way around. They know which of the many counters of the labor exchange to go to without asking, and know how much dole they are entitled to get. The others, the unskilled workers, who have to ask, are temporary unemployeds."

In Great Britain there are known to be 1,500,000 now out of work, and of them 1,000,000 are permanently out of jobs. They are not progress and doing themselves no good.

It was a sad day for Britain when that dole business was started. There is much to be said for unemployment insurance. But such insurance, it is clear, will be a curse to any country unless it is combined with some system of industrial statesmanship which keeps the dole from becoming permanent, and makes as little use of it as possible even in emergencies.

If men are supported from public funds, in fairness to society as a whole, and to the beneficiaries themselves, the able bodied should perform some economic service to earn it. Otherwise an able-bodied population is pauperized and the nation is impoverished. Ancient Rome died that way. Modern society should know better.

Worse Than a Spy

A stool pigeon is a person used as a decoy to lure other persons into a net. Usually a stool pigeon is a person hostile to those he betrays. Especially one who betrays others for hire is held in contempt. A stool pigeon is as a spy for the police is called a stool pigeon.

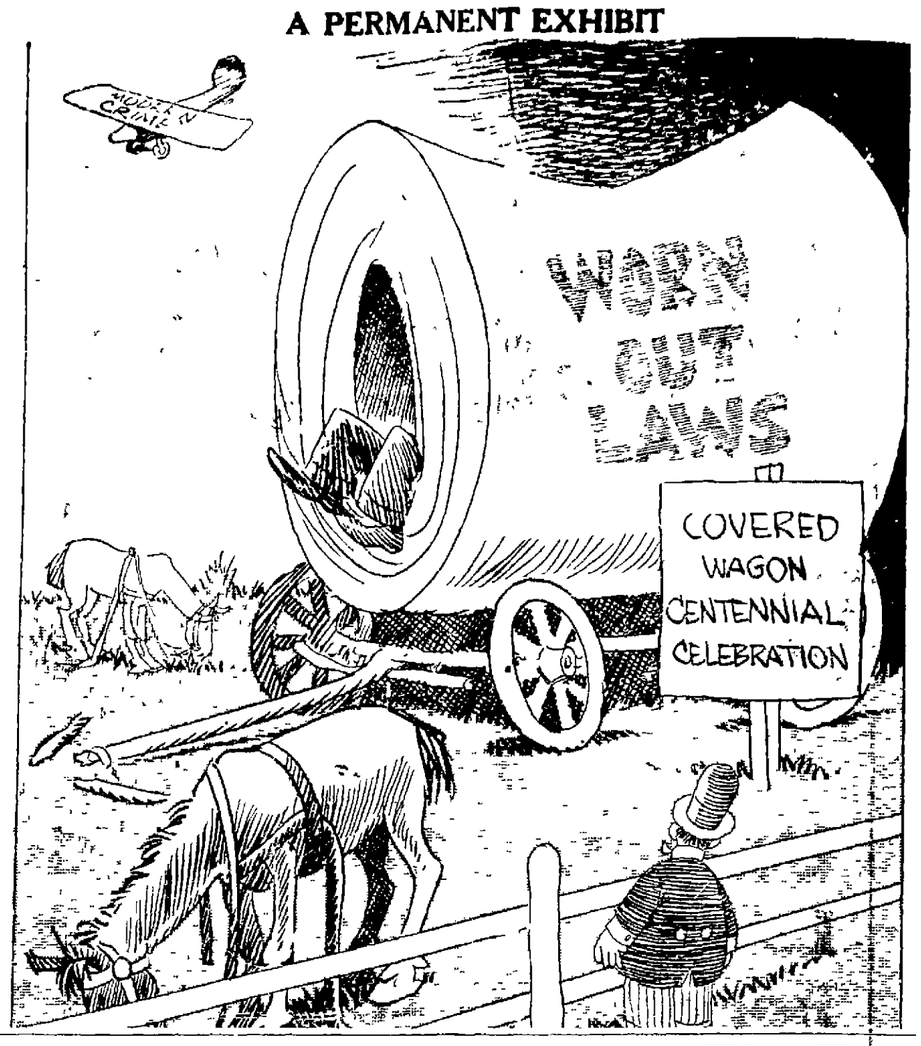
A PERMANENT EXHIBIT



"MASTER of MONEY"
BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"A THOUSAND pardons if I disturb a reverie!" he exclaimed. "Your housekeeper directed me to the garden."

"I'm sorry," laughed Shirley. "I'm afraid I shall not be in the country long enough to train her properly. I wasn't really dreaming, Monsieur Maurois. I was only thinking how nice it would be to fly across this bay, perch on Mount Olympus and then fly back again."

"That could easily be arranged," said Maurois seriously. "But not this morning, I'm afraid. I can, however, offer you a poor substitute. I had called in the hope that you and your husband would let me take you for a run and show you a bit of the country. I had in mind a little jaunt, of a hundred kilometres perhaps, that would enable us to be back before the light fails."

"How perfectly delightful of you!" exclaimed Shirley. "But, unfortunately, Alan left about an hour ago—he's spending two or three days up-country and I am all alone."

"That is in the nature of a catastrophe," said Maurois. "If he had consulted me first I could perhaps have made his journey a little easier. It is a lovely morning. A day to take the air. It emboldens me to repeat my invitation."

"And me to accept it," said Shirley. Thanks tremendously. Give me five minutes to wrap up."

Five minutes later, wrapped in furs, she was sitting beside him in an open car. In front was a manservant sitting beside the chauffeur, and Shirley wondered whether he were an armed policeman in plain clothes.

The car took them through the suburb of Kalamaria eastwards, and in ten minutes had brought them to open country.

"How beautifully your man drives," said Shirley. "This is the first bit of fresh air I've had for a month or more."

"He is a new man," answered Maurois. He is not yet fully trained. But he shows promise."

Shirley nodded indifferently. She did not want to talk—wanted merely to lean back and savor the rush through the air. As if he had perceived this Maurois made no further remarks, but subtly conveyed the impression that he was vastly enjoying himself. For an hour or more they ran through tumbling hills, a fringe of the Balkan range. Then, after a long climb to a grassy plateau Maurois stopped the car.

"I think we will lunch here," he said. "While my man is getting it ready, let us stroll to the top there and I will show you a pleasing valley."

Shirley admired the valley without effort. She was even curious to see what lay beyond the ridge, for the valley was like a thousand others in Macedonia, but her companion was in a talkative mood, and seemingly he was desirous of entertaining her. Of course, it was part of the society of Maurois. It was one thing to turn one's back on the high world but it was undeniably pleasant to be treated once again as a beautiful woman. Maurois was a delightful companion for a day or two.

The lunch, she thought, was a little too elaborate for a picnic and she refused nothing, but pledged herself to drink more than one glass of champagne. She gathered that the servant was off from being an enterprise as a domestic servant. While he produced excellent coffee served in a dainty coffee cup Shirley permitted herself to laugh.

"Monsieur Maurois, you asked me to a picnic and you are giving me a banquet."

He was quick to catch the faint irony of her voice.

"That tells me I have failed," he said gloomily. "It is the tragedy of my race. It is given to us to do many things better than other nations can do them, but the picnic—"

"Oh, come," answered Shirley. "I've never enjoyed a picnic so much in all my life. Perfect."

"That makes me nervous. Let us hurry away from it while we both share that illusion."

A few minutes later they had resumed their journey.

"There will be no more speed for the next thirty kilometres or so," said Maurois, "for the road becomes very rough. Nevertheless, you will have the leisure to observe a Balkan village."

As he spoke they turned the bend and passed through a village of twenty or more squat houses built on a hillside one above the other. Shirley looked for signs of life and found none.

"It's abandoned, isn't it?" she asked.

"No. The women are all inside—from one of the houses you can see smoke. The men are in the hills. This is a Comitadji village—bandits—and I fancy the men are all away on business."

"But—do the authorities know that? Why do they let them——"

"Ah! I was wrong. They are not so far away," interrupted Maurois. "Look ahead. You are now going to see an interesting spectacle—the Comitadji at work."

A hundred yards ahead a number of men on horses were galloping from behind a rocky crag, shouting to each other and spreading over the road. Shirley supposed there must have been twenty or thirty of them.

"They see in us a profitable enterprise," Maurois told her. "Are you afraid?"

"I suppose I am a bit," answered Shirley. "But not as much as I ought to be. What will they do to us?"

"You are a brave woman," said Maurois, touching her hand. "They will do nothing to us—as you will see."

The horsemen halted, massed in the middle of the road, barring it. Shots were fired in the air, then four men, brandishing revolvers, rode forward.

As they neared the car, Maurois stood up and addressed them roughly in a language which Shirley did not understand. Instantly the men pocketed their revolvers, and the leader shouted to his followers, who promptly turned about and scattered. The leader dismounted came to the side of the car and addressed Maurois volubly in apologetic tones. Maurois waved him away and the car continued.

"A little misunderstanding. That fellow was explaining that it was unreasonable of me to expect him to recognize my chauffeur at that distance—especially as I have only been in such a short time."

"They know you, then—the bandits?" asked Shirley.

"Scarcely," he answered. "But as I think I mentioned, I have many interests in Macedonia."

Shirley shrank back into her corner. For a moment she had felt suddenly afraid of Maurois. That quick, intuitive fear of Maurois was gone in a second, leaving behind merely the pleasing tang of adventure. There was adventure in Maurois as well as entertainment. Here was a man who knew a great deal more than he admitted—a rich man who used his money to bring him power over unexpected persons in unexpected places.

For two hours the car made slow progress over rough roads, through bleak, forbidding country whose only charm lay in its wildness. Maurois, gossiping with idle fluency, stopping the car to show her now a battlefield, now a legendary resting place of Saint Paul, kept her interested so that she could feel a pang of regret as they ran back through the city.

"I have enjoyed it immensely," she said as they neared Kalamaria. "I can't tell you how grateful I am."

"Dear lady, today I have lived in the civilization I have abandoned. There are times when Macedonia proves too much for one—even for me. But you have restored my courage. I feel that tonight I shall surpass myself, and it is necessary—for tonight I entertain Madame Stavros."

"She is a brilliant woman?" suggested Shirley.

"By virtue of being the wife of the Commissioner, I think that Macedonia would agree with you," said Maurois dryly. "It is for me perhaps a little unfortunate that she once spent three days in Paris and have memorized the names of our principal squares and places of public interest."

"Could you yourself sustain a conversation over a period of years on the subject of Central Park and Grant's Tomb? I do not exaggerate. The wife has but to rustle through the trees of my garden and it reminds the good lady of the Bois de Boulogne. By the way, is it permitted to enquire whether your business with the Commissioner is settled?"

"I have not heard from him," answered Shirley, "but I suppose there has been hardly time."

"Time has little meaning in Macedonia," said Maurois. "And I have never known him do anything from his office. You must meet him socially. I hesitate to expose you to his banalities—to say nothing of those at my house tonight? It will be tedious, but it will undoubtedly advance your business—and possibly I may seize an opportunity to show you my house, of which I am incredibly proud."

"You are very kind, Monsieur but as my husband is away——"

"Stavros has a profound admiration for the Americans," put in Maurois. "But his knowledge of your countrymen is limited to their money making achievements. It would not strike him as eccentric for you to come without your husband. For myself, I have not the arrogance to beg you to assist me to entertain a couple of cumbersome guests. Only the knowledge that it will undoubtedly facilitate your business with him apologizes to my conscience in asking you."

For an imperceptible second Shirley hesitated. There was of course, no real reason why Alan's absence should affect her—and here was a chance to advance her work.

"Monsieur Maurois, when you run on like that," she laughed "you merely convince me that I shall thoroughly enjoy myself."

The car stopped opposite her house and he helped her out.

"I may send my limousine for you?" he asked. "We dine at eight."

Shirley, looking forward to the evening before her, lingered over the task of choosing a dinner frock. She had left New York prepared for any emergency and had brought many of her clothes with her. She had stored them in the spacious wardrobe of two unused rooms.

It was a matter that required some thought. Her hostess had mentioned only Stavros and his wife as guests. She did not know the standard of dress adopted by the wife of a Macedonian official and in the end compromised with a simple gown of black silk that she had originally chosen for dining more or less en famille with Roger and Alan in Vermont.

"It's rather fun — dressing again!" she told herself, but beyond this made no advance to herself that she was for once again something of the old style at the prospect of "meeting people." Tonight, too, there was the added zest of knowing that there was much at stake.

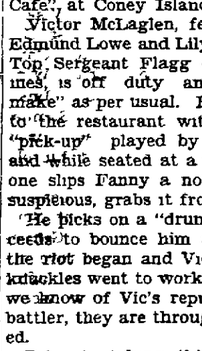
Start Baby Right!
Dr. Copeland's Health Topic Today

Habits Formed in the First Year of a Child's Life Have a Distinct Bearing on Its Future Health, Warns Authority.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

CHILDREN do not just grow up of their own accord, as every parent knows. They must be nurtured and trained to good habits. It makes a lot of difference whether your baby begins life with good or with bad habits.



DR COPELAND

There are too many persons who think it doesn't matter what habits a baby has in its first year. They appear to believe it will be easy enough to change them later. That is a great mistake, as they will find out.

It is most important of all that a baby have the right food. Next to this come its eating habits.

The experts will tell you that of all things which an infant needs most to start him in life is mother's milk. The child's future health may depend on its having this precious life-giving food. Bottle feeding can never take just the place of breast feeding. No small or trivial excuse can be justified in taking away the natural food of a child. Of course, there are cases where it is absolutely necessary but any child is far better off for having its own mother's milk.

When a food formula must be used it should be given under the direction of a physician for your baby's special needs. What agrees with one child may not agree with another.

Whether breast fed or bottle fed, many babies should be given when a few weeks old cod liver oil and orange juice as a preventive of rickets. Your doctor should advise you about this.

Make a habit of feeding your baby at the proper time and see that it sleeps between the feedings. Make sure that elimination is correct.

If a baby cries the first thought is to pick it up and make it comfortable. The very littlest baby knows when it is taken up it is made warm and comfortable. It is natural that the more often it is taken up the more it will cry for more of that treatment. Teach the baby the right habits in this respect. It is good and natural for a baby to cry sometimes.

Of course, when a baby cries incessantly there is probably some thing is the secret. You should eat nourishing foods and have plenty of sleep and rest. For full particulars send a self addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

MRS R H Q.—Is there any danger in having injections for varicose veins?

A.—No, not if they are given properly.

MRS E. D. A. Q.—What do you advise for superfluous hair?

2.—What causes blue spots as big as a dime on the arms and legs?

3.—What causes blisters on the tongue after eating acid foods?

A.—Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

2.—This may be due to "purpura." It would be wise to have an examination by your doctor.

2.—This is probably due to hyperacidity caused by faulty diet and poor elimination.

MRS. D Q.—What causes a boy of twenty to sit and stare, and talk to himself?

A.—Have him given a careful examination by the family doctor.

E. L. G. Q.—How much should a girl aged 15, 5 feet 5 inches tall weigh?

2.—Is it safe to cut down on food at this age?

A.—She should weigh about 120 pounds.

2.—Yes.

Mrs. C. R. H. Q.—How can I reduce weight?

A.—Eat very sparingly of starches sugars and fats. Get regular systematic exercise. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed with the regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.

• • •

H. F. S. Q.—What can be done for excessive perspiration under the arms?

A.—Hot water compresses applied under the arm for half an hour are beneficial.

A LOVING MOTHER Q.—How can I gain weight?

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

No battle royal ever held in a boxing ring, no free-for-all fight ever staged for stage or screen, compares with that seen and heard on the screen, we believe, with the "punch" scene in "The Cock Eyed World," Fox Movietone all talking picture showing at the Grand theatre Sunday.

The particular battle takes place in a combination eating and dancing place known as the "Ship Cafe", at Coney Island.

Victor McLaglen, featured with Edmund Lowe and Lily Damita, as Top Sergeant Flagg of the Marines, is off duty and "on the make" as per usual. He comes into the restaurant with Fanny, a "pick-up" played by Jean Bary, and while seated at a table, someone slips Fanny a note. Flagg, suspicious, grabs it from her.

He picks on a "drunk" and proceeds to bounce him about. Then the riot began and Vic's educated knuckles went to work. And what we know of Vic's reputation as a battler, they are throughly educated.

Prior to taking this particular scene, Walsh, who always craves the real battle, confidently informed McLaglen that those who would battle with him were all ex-pugs. Sugar Willie Keeler, former light heavyweight contender, Joe Herrick, a middleweight and a real battler, Charley Sullivan, Leo Houk and a few more.

"Now Vic," emphasized Walsh, "I am paying this gang good money. Don't hold anything back. Give them both barrels." Those seeing the fight agreed that Vic gave them plenty.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"America's boy friend' has a new sweetheart, and a mighty sweet one too. In "Half Way to Heaven," which shows for the first time Friday at the Cliftona, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, as fine and lovable a screen personality as he is, has to share honors with Jean Arthur. She's a honey.

And the story is a honey, too. In fact the whole entertainment is on that action, romance, comedy order which makes one of the most enjoyable evenings possible. You'll like it. Everybody, generally speaking liked it last night.

New Matinee Prices

Effective March 15th, Saturday matinee prices well be reduced to 25c for adults between the hours of two and five p. m. The children admission, already reduced to a minimum, will remain the same. This reduction is made to induce patrons to attend the matinee performances and avoid the evening rush hours. Sunday prices for matinee are not effected by the change.

A new policy is being tried out Sunday with the showing of "Van and Schenk" in their first full-length talking picture. "They Learned about Women." This production will be shown Sunday only, with a continuous matinee starting at 2 p. m., to ascertain if a distinct and separate attraction for Sunday meets with the approval of patrons who may desire a complete change of program on Monday of each week.

Early Envelopes

Envelopes were cut and gummed by hand until 1844 when a machine for making them was patented in England. In America the first patent for a similar machine was granted in 1849.

Popular Adage

The adage about the pot calling the kettle black is found in many tongues. A Spanish adaptation is: "Said the jackdaw to the crow: Get away, nigger," while in Italy one hears: "The pan says to the kettle: Get away lest you stain me." "The shovel scoffs at the poker," is the way the French put it. Hindus quote: "The colander said to the needle: 'Get away, you have a hole in you!'"

Check dandruff!

You, too, can say goodbye to hair-worries, if you'll learn this simple method of caring for the hair. It is known to hundreds of stage and screen stars; used by thousands of women and girls, who haven't time for laborious methods.

Sprinkle a little Danderine on your brush tonight. Then as you brush your hair you'll feel the soothing, toning effects.

For over 30 years, specialists have recommended Danderine; to dissolve the crust of dandruff; stop falling hair; tone the scalp, encourage the hair to grow long, silky and abundant.

The first application gives your hair new life and lustre; makes it softer; easier to manage; holds it like you arrange it. Evidence beyond doubt proves the benefits of its regular use.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

Circleville Is Eliminated From Tournament

GREAT SPRINGFIELD OFFENSE PROVES TOO POWERFUL FOR LOCAL QUINT; SCORE 40-25

George Vlerebome Tied For High Score and Plays Excellent Floor Game But Wittenberg College Stars Have Too Many Guns For C. A. C.—Pitzer, College Freshman, and Eisele Hit Hoop—Springfield to Meet Hebron In Finals.

Circleville Athletic Club basketball players are offering no alibis for their defeat at the hands of the Springfield Denton and Co, boosers in the semi-finals of the Ohio State Journal tournament played Thursday evening. The score was 40-25 and although the Club played a great game for two periods, they cracked in the second half and offered only slight resistance to the offensive powers of the Springfield quintet.

By virtue of their victory over the Club, Springfield's lads will meet the Hebron Balthis Gassers for the championship next Tuesday evening and should be returned the victor. Fans who attended the game Thursday evening were convinced that the two best teams in the tournament, Springfield and Circleville, met, and were of an opinion that the winner of that game would cop the tourney Well, everyone knows who won the game, so it is just a matter of time now until Springfield is the champion, barring upsets, which occur occasionally.

It is a certainty that whichever quintet cops the gonfalon Columbus is completely out of the picture.

EISELE HITS

The game started with Weasel Eisele looping two goals before the Club had possession of the ball. Pitzer missed two free throws then Vlerebome scored one foul shot when he was fouled by Bup Rearick.

Elsele fouled Vlerebome and he again scored a free toss. Parks broke loose under the net for a goal, his first of the tournament. Kreeger scored on Park's foul and Pitzer put his team in the lead with a goal. Pitzer scored from far out before Vlerebome counted an action shot Springfield took time out with the score 8-7 in their favor. Parks fouled Kreeger and Dopey missed. Rearick counted a bucket just before the first period ended. The score was 10-7

Gordon scored a goal from under the net and Merriman counted a free throw to tie the count. Merriman scored a duper from the side and Kreeger retaliated. Eisele looped a one hand shot and Pitzer hit the hoop from far out, over Gordon's head Vlerebome counted a field goal and the score was Springfield 16, C A C 14. Pitzer scored again to make the count 18-14 just as the half ended.

And from the beginning of the third period until the end of the game, Circleville didn't have much of a chance. With the Wittenberg College boys passing to perfection and scoring neat baskets on perfectly executed plays, Springfield gradually increased her lead until the game was on ice.

Pitzer scored two rapid goals, Kreeger counted, Pitzer again scored and Kreeger followed a shots for another bucket. Dick Robinson went in for Judy Gordon. Merriman heaved a goal; he came back with another. The score was now 28-18 with Springfield on the long end. Rearick scored and Vlerebome heaved a one hand shot from the side. Vlerebome scored a foul. The quarter ended 30-21.

Mansfield scored and Parks and Vlerebome each counted a free throw. Elsele scored twice in rapid succession and Rearick and Mansfield each hit the hoop. Steele missed a free throw and Vlerebome went under the net for another basket. The game ended 40-25.

VLEREBOME IS STAR

George Vlerebome was the star in the C. A. C. lineup

Playing against one of the finest little guards in the tournament, Rearick, "Boom" was all over the floor and scored foul goals and five free throws to tie with Pitzer for high honors Pitzer played his best game of the tournament for Springfield scoring six goals and a free throw. Weasel Eisele was as tough as always counting five action shots.

KONJOLA ENDS FOUR YEARS OF SEVERE ILLNESS

Youngstown Man Praises Modern Medicine—Says It Brought Relief After Others Failed.

MR. JOHN THOMAS.

"Stomach trouble and rheumatism bothered me terribly for four years," said Mr. John Thomas, 47 Fleming street, Youngstown. Nothing I ate agreed with me and great quantities of gas formed in my stomach after every meal. Shortness of breath and severe heart-palpitation invariably followed these gas accumulations. Rheumatism attacked me, principally in my right leg. The pains were so severe that walking was always difficult.

"I was hardly prepared for the relief Konjola brought me. In a short time my health worries were over entirely. Today I do not suffer from gas pains and bloating. The shortness of breath and heart palpitations are a thing of the past. Best of all the frightful pains from rheumatism have left me with the rest of my ailments and I get about more easily than I have in a long time. My entire system has been built up by this master medicine, Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

NEW COAST VESSELS LAUNCHED IN ERIE

CLEVELAND, March 14—Two new coast guard vessels were launched into Lake Erie today, signaling the start of the government's spring offensive against rum runners.

Ironically enough, both the new coast guard vessels were formerly the crafts of notorious rum runners. One of them was known as the Helen and the other the Skijie. Flying the colors of the government, they are now identified as the CG-8000 and CG-9074.

In addition to these two new vessels, two other crafts—also former rum runners—will be launched for rum warfare within the next two weeks, according to Capt. John Daly, commander of the local coast guard station. They are the Idle Hour and the Howey. Both were captured last November.

13 MONTH'S TERM

CINCINNATI, O., March 14—James Dooley, 22, former assistant teller in the Second National bank here, today had been sentenced to serve 13 months in the United States reformatory at Chillicothe. Dooley pleaded guilty to charges of embezzling $7,000 of the funds of the financial institution.

Getting a Chance Behind the Plate

500 BABY CHICKS PERISH IN BLAZE

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 14—Five hundred baby chicks perished Thursday when a brooder house on the Anthony Zarzano farm on the National highway, east of here, was destroyed by fire.

Cause of the blaze was not determined. It did $1,000 damage.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN WATER TROUGH

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Mar. 14. Wilbur Mercer, 54, who had been missing from his home during the night, was found dead in the watering trough on his farm near DeGraff today. The man is believed to have suffered a heart attack and to have fallen into the large water container.

Way to Get At a Cold Is Through the Bowels

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice in case of colds is a mild laxative like cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens bowel muscles. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascarets.

Remember this when you catch cold; whenever breath is bad; tongue coated; or you're headachy, bilious, constipated.

Why resort to harsher things when Cascarets activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime?

GRAND CIRCUIT AT LAFAYETTE

Expect New London Company To Bid For Harness Racing This Summer.

Grand circuit harness racing will in all probability be brought to Central Ohio race fans at the new "Lafayette Park," one-mile track now under construction 17 miles west of Columbus on the National highway. The new track will be one of the largest plants of its kind in the country and has a race fan population of two million people within a radius of 70 miles A bid for the big time harness events is certain to receive much consideration.

Present plans call for running races, harness races and steeplechasing which is a new sport for Central Ohio race followers. The steeplechase course second to none in the middlewest will be a great attraction to horse lovers. This sport is much more thrilling than other forms of racing because much more depends upon the skill of the horse and rider and almost anything is liable to happen before a mount reaches the straightway after the final hurdle.

Lafayette Park, owned by the Central Ohio Breeders' Association of London, Ohio, will be completed in time for a running race meet some time in July, according to Edward G. Hoefler, architect superintending the construction of the new oval.

Only the Present Counts

"My motto is,' says William Muldoon, veteran conditioner of men. "Live for today. Forget yesterday. Don't anticipate tomorrow."—American Magazine.

What Really Counts

It is not what you'll do with a million, if riches should be your lot, but what you are doing at present with the dollar and a half you've got.—Exchange.

ARRESTED MAN ASKS DAMAGES

COLUMBUS, Mar. 14—Because Louis L. Alexander, proprietor of a local confectionery, allegedly identified Howard Minic as the robber who held up and robbed him recently, Minic today had filed a $25,000 damage suit against the store owner The man charged that his reputation was damaged to that extent by his "false arrest."

SPLENDID MEETING OF LADIES' SOCIETY

This month's meeting of the Ladies' Society of the Trinity Lutheran congregation, was attended by 72 members. The program was fine, the business well conducted, and the social period very pleasant.

Among the numbers of the program was an interesting history of the local Home and Hospital told by Mrs. J. R. Noecker, who was pital for four years.

The meeting was opened by singing a hymn, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. George Himrod. Dr. G. J. Troutman, president of the society read scripture and gave the opening prayer. Singing followed the prayer.

Mrs. U. R. Riegel, made the reading of the missionary paper for the month, an important feature of the afternoon. The subject was "Ann, the Constant Dweller in God's House."

Two musical numbers on the program were very popular with those present. These numbers were two songs, "The Promised Land," and "The Springtime of the Soul," sung as duets by Mrs. Geo. Himrod and Miss Kitty Meade. president of the Home and Hos- Mrs. George Troutman accompanied them at the piano.

Delicious and attractive refreshments were served by the following March committee, headed by Mrs. J. R. Noecker; Mrs. John Ahn, Mrs. J. H. Helwagen, Mrs. John Stout, Mrs. H. H. Groce, Mrs. Michael Stoer, Mrs. William Wrightsel, Mrs. Rose Ribl, Mrs. Jacob Scharenberg, Mrs. Aaron Updyke, Mrs. M. L. Rudy and Mrs. Merten Westenhaver.

MRS. RAMSEY AND MISS ORR ARE COMPLIMENTED

Green and white, the colors for St. Patrick's Day predominated at the luncheon-bridge Thursday at which Miss Elizabeth Stevenson of Park-pl was hostess. Paper white carnations supported by green ferns were on the tables and the place cards and bridge pads further emphasized the color idea.

Six tables of guests were present, at this outstanding social event which complimented Mrs. Mary Ramsey of Coraopolis, Pa., and Miss Sarah Orr of Zanesville. Mrs. Ramsey is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. A. D. Newmyer of Park-pl and Miss Orr is the guest of her cousin, Miss Stevenson.

The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Byrle Stevenson and Miss Elizabeth Roth.

The prizes for the highest scores were won by Mrs. J. G. Wilder and Miss Sadie Brunner. The two guests of honor were also presented with complimentary prizes.

MISS WILDER TALKS AT CLUB MEETING

Miss Mary Wilder, the president had charge of the meeting Thursday night, of the Business and Professional Women's Club, held at Circleville Public Library. She spoke, with great interest on the history of the Public Library, discussing its different departments. These included magazine indexes and reference books and other phases of the work.

The evening was decidedly worth while, and it was agreed that those who absented themselves, missed a great treat.

The Business and Professional Women's club has offered its support to the Monday club in their "Road of Remembrances."

This week is National Business Woman's Week. The local club initiated the opening of that week by attending church in a body last Sunday at the Methodist Episcopal church.

The next meeting of the club will be a dinner meeting at the St. Phillips Episcopal Parish house March 27 at 6:30 o'clock. Mrs. Williams, president of the Columbus club will be the guest speaker of the evening. Tickets for this supper may be bought from Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick.

The hospitality committee of the business woman's club announced that there will be a card party on Thursday March 20. The place will be announced later.

SELECT DAY FOR NUTRITION PROGRAM

A committee comprised of Mrs. Cliff Reichelderfer, Miss Mary McKenzie, and Miss Mary Shortridge, selected by the township nutrition leaders to develop the county nutrition achievement today program have selected Wednesday, April 30 for the nutrition achievement day.

This program is a general round-up of all the women who have taken part in the "Attractive Desserts" project which has been conducted throughout the past winter, through the cooperation of the Farm bureau and the home economics department of the Ohio State University.

The committee has assigned to different township groups, various features of entertainment. Demonstrations will be presented to the group through which different features of the program which is being completed throughout the county, will be correlated and presented by a nutrition specialist.

The program will begin at 10 a. m., and be brought to a conclusion at 3 p. m.

A group dinner will be served and enjoyed during the noon hour. The special committee will announce later complete details of this program, but women throughout the county are looking forward to this occasion and from the suggestions which were developed by the special committee, a most interesting program is assured for the county wide nutrition achievement day.
